

JACKSON-MADISON COUNTY SCHOOL SYSTEM

Living wax museum a hit at Madison Academic

Students use creativity, theater skills to celebrate Black History Month

Students at Madison Academic took a creative and interactive approach to celebrating Black History Month last Friday. The living wax museum, which featured students from many different classes dressed as notable African Americans, provided an interactive opportunity for the entire campus to learn historical facts and contributions made by a number of trailblazers. Posters and props helped set the stage for the speeches that were given. Who says history can't be fun?

From the Superintendent's Desk

For employment opportunities, be sure to attend the JMCSS career fair on Tuesday, March 21 from 3pm to 6pm at Oman Arena. Remember, there's never been a better time to choose JMCSS! Apply now at www.jmcss.org/jobs

The Super Challenge

The sum of the angles of a triangle is how many degrees?

2/24 answer: 700 cm²

WOW: Word of the Week

Cursory: quick or hasty